Dear friends:

That old seasonal refrain (or some variation of it) that appears year after year can now be heard whenever a calendar enters a conversation: "I can't believe that summer is almost here." Yes, time is moving on and moving quickly. Or at least it seems that days and events are going by at an accelerated pace. Some of that can be attributed to age, some of it to the pace we keep whether of our own choosing or imposed on us by life's circumstances. None of this is helped by the fact that various electronic communication devices are as standard in vacation luggage as shorts and sunscreen.

Except for a few, highly disciplined individuals who manage to carve out some time off the treadmill, most of us don't stop or even slow down very much until something catches us by surprise – an illness, an injury, a layoff, the death of a loved one. These and other life changing events invariably become things to manage, things to get over or recover from. The impulse to seek a return to normalcy and regular routines is held up as the appropriate response to life's tragic surprises. But as anyone who has gone through such an event knows, it is not that simple. Yet we still expend a great deal of effort in trying to conform to that expectation which only creates further problems down the line.

If we as a culture have such trouble dealing with the unpleasant surprises life throws our way, how are we with the wonderful surprises with which life is filled? Based on the pace at which life is lived, my guess is that we probably don't even notice many of them. Does it take a grave medical diagnosis to make us understand how precious life is? Do we have to lose a job to make us come to grips with the fact that we are more than our resume? Does it take the death of a loved one to make us realize how much we have been loved by another person? None of this is pleasant to consider because it seems so fearful, but it does not have to be.

The one thing we all have is time. Some people have more, others less and no one is in complete control of the time they have. But of that portion of the day which we can direct, how much of it is spent being wonderfully surprised by the opportunities to be loved and to love in return, to marvel at the beauty of a flower even while sneezing at it, to appreciate the health and abilities we have rather than regretting those we have lost? I guess it's all a question of priorities, or more precisely who or what is setting them.

"Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow; they neither toil nor spin; yet I tell you, even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these." (Matthew 6:28) When was the last time you spent a day in a field, or in the mountains, or pursuing an avocation or hobby, or at a museum, or even took a leisurely walk around the block with a friend? The surprises, wonderful ones, that can be found in such things when approached without a 'to do' list will feed the soul. If we can learn to value and seek out the wonderful surprises that fill the world, then when tragic ones strike they can be easier to handle and less fearful.

I hope your summer is wonderfully filled with surprises that will make the arrival of Labor Day not the end of something but another day to stop and consider God's wonderful work in the world.

God bless,
Fr. Alan

Upcoming Baptisms

Baptisms will be held on Pentecost Sunday, June 12 during the 10:00 am service. The deadline for Baptism registrations is Friday, June 3.

Recognition Sunday

During both services on Sunday, June 19 (Father's Day!) we will recognize our Church School staff and Leaders in Liturgy. These members of our parish help make St. Andrew's possible; don't miss the opportunity to thank them for their service. And don't forget to join the Church School for Lunch on the Lawn following the 10:00 am service.

Playdates in the Park

Playdates in the Park will continue this summer! A time and park have not been picked, but will be announced shortly. Watch the bulletins for further information! And remember, friends are more than welcome! Email the Rev'd Jeanne Hansknecht (jhansknecht@standrewsaa.org) with any questions.

Book Group

The Book Discussion Group will meet on Sunday, June 26 at 11:30 am in the chapel. Please feel free to bring a brown-bag lunch. Our book for discussion is, "Zeitoun" by Dave Eggers. Zeitoun tells the true account of Abdulrahman Zeitoun, a Syrian-American owner of a painting company in New Orleans who chose to ride out Hurricane Katrina in his Uptown home. After the storm he traveled the flooded city in a canoe rescuing neighbors, caring for abandoned pets and distributing supplies.

Join us Sunday, July 10 at Island Park for a 10:00 am Holy Eucharist followed by the annual parish picnic. Please note that on this Sunday there will be no 9:15 am Family Service or Church School. Details can be found on the back cover of this issue of The Network. Contact Suzanne Ross at (734) 665-6372 or srross@mac.com for more information.

Changes to standrewsaa.org!

Starting Monday, June 6, the St. Andrew's website will be under construction. Most of the site will be inaccessible as we undergo a complete redesign and content overhaul. The service schedules, weekly calendar and announcements, the rota, and The Network will remain available and up to date through out the summer. Standrewsaa.org will return in it's entirety in early September. If you have any questions please email Kate Riedel, Communications Coordinator, at communications@standrewsaa.org.

Updating the Parish Directory

It is hard to believe that it is time once again to gather information for the parish directory! Between now and mid-July we will be updating parishoner's information for the 2011-2012 directory. The deadline for corrections is Friday, July 22, with the directory being available in early September.

We ask that you take a moment and check your listing in the current directory to ensure that we have the correct information for your names, phone number, address, children's names and primary email address. If you have additions or corrections, would you kindly email them to Kathy McPherson at kmcpherson@standrewsaa.org, call the parish office at 663-0518, or drop a note in the collection plate.

CLERGY CORNER

Curate's Contemplations

My son registered for the draft this year and I have two more sons quickly coming of age. I am anxious about this. I lose sleep over this. On 9/11 an unimaginable horror happened that shook the naivety right out of me-- I can't keep my children safe. And then as if to prove it, we went to war. We have been a country at war for nearly a decade and we are made painfully aware of it every time we hear the prayers for the departed or see a flag at half mast. We recognize it every time we travel or go to a national museum or national park. As a nation at war we are a nation suffering loss: the loss of life, the loss of security, the loss of civil liberties, economic loss, and in my opinion, the loss of any moral high ground (if we had any to begin with). The war has pitted neighbor against neighbor as we struggle to figure out a way to pay for it. Internal villains have been created in order to justify budget cuts on all levels of government. The war has also pitted religion against religion with protests and Koran burnings. So I will confess to God and everyone, that I was not saddened by the news of Osama bin Laden's assassination and a part of me, the protective mother part, even celebrated the hope (not his death, but the hope) that maybe now the war can finally end.

When the world heard the news, some people celebrated publicly, some people privately. Some people visibly relived their pain from the terrorist attack, some people struggled with inner anxiety about it. Some people felt relief, others felt fear. Some people felt justice had been served, some people felt a great injustice had been done. There are degrees of appropriateness and inappropriateness in all of these responses. People respond to grief in different ways and what I learned by all of the varying responses is that many of us are still deeply in mourning. We are a nation consumed by loss and have not done any collective grief work so we are left in a state of emotional extremes.

I have been thinking a lot about Desmond Tutu this past week (because I LOVE him!). Specifically, I have been thinking about The Truth and Reconciliation Commission (TRC) and the deliberate decision to not recreate the humiliation of the post-WWII Nuremberg trials in a post-apartheid South Africa. The TRC was a controlled venue for telling the stories of both victims and perpetrators—a place where loss was openly expressed and put on the record. From there, there was at least opportunity for remorse to be shared, forgiveness extended, and in some circumstances amnesty granted. It was a place to do grief work. The decision was made to go about justice for victims of Apartheid in this way because in the end, people have to live together. From Tutu's book No Future Without Forgiveness, it seems like the process was very healing for victims and evil doers alike. I am wondering if anything like the TRC could have worked with bin Laden and followers. If in the last ten years we have gone down a path of vengeance and retaliation and shaming, how can we use this model to change course now?

I can't help but think that the disciples and other friends and family of Jesus were in a similar place after the crucifixion. Their loss was public and overwhelming. Their world was unsafe and their grief immeasurable. What really strikes me in the accountings of the time after the resurrection is that Jesus wasn't interested in revenge, he wasn't interested in proving to the naysayers that he was right, he wasn't interested in ranting about betrayal and abuse of power. In his appearances he never once cried out for justice. Instead he was interested in making sure his story had a voice. And it was through the telling and retelling of the story that healing took place—not just for the disciples but for the whole world. The seasons of Easter and Pentecost are about doing our grief work; they are about coming out of our woundedness and telling our stories, expecting not justice necessarily but healing and reconciliation, because in the end, we all have to live together. The disciples never received justice for their loss, not the way we would understand it, what they did receive was far greater than that. They received new life and so can we.

May peace prevail on earth, Jeanne+

From the Deacon's Bench

Pentecost is coming! On Sunday, June 12, we will celebrate the Day of Pentecost. Our great fifty days of rejoicing over the Resurrection of our Lord come to their conclusion with the celebration of God's sending of the Spirit and the Church's acceptance of the Spirit as gift.

"Pentecost" is derived from the Greek word for "the fiftieth day," which in turn corresponds to the Hebrew, Shabouth, the Feast of Weeks. The Jewish feast was a thanksgiving for the wheat harvest and took place seven weeks after the Feast of the Unleavened Bread, Passover.

The outpouring of the Holy Spirit on the Apostles at our first Pentecost was a gift-giving similar to Moses presenting the law at Sinai. It was a conclusion and also a beginning. Having their formation in Christ completed with the gift of the Spirit, the Apostles went forth to carry the gift of faith to all nations.

We celebrate this day by reading the first lesson from the Acts of the Apostles in various languages simultaneously. So: do you speak another language? If you do, you can help to add to the wonderful holy cacophony that will sound through the church that morning at both the 8:00 am and 10:00 am services!

I have many different translations of the passage we will read. Please speak to me and tell me what you need to make this a glorious celebration.

Deacon Svea

The Day of Pentecost

Sunday, June 12

Lunch on the Lawn

Sunday, June 19

You are all cordially invited to attend a "Lunch On The Lawn" party at the conclusion of our Church School year on the last day of our regular program, Sunday, June 19. On that day we recognize all the wonderful teachers who have given both time and talent to our program this year. We extend an invitation to the whole parish to join us and help celebrate the beginning of summer. We'll have music, subs, ice cream and lots of fun!

Summer Church School Starts Sunday, June 26!

Our combined Summer School program begins on Sunday, June 26 and continues through July 31. There is no Church School on Sunday, July 10 (come to the Parish Picnic instead!).

A preschool and kindergarten class will meet in the Morning Glories room and a combined first through fifth grade class will meet in the Lounge.

A nursery for infants and toddlers is available through the summer months until the beginning of our fall program on Sunday, September 11.

2011 - 2012 Teaching Staff

To those who have volunteered, we say thank you so much for saying "yes" to this vital and exciting teaching ministry at St. Andrew's. We are always in need of new teachers to our program. Please give serious consideration to sharing a small amount of your time on Sunday mornings with our children. The reward is priceless! A Church School Staff orientation meeting will be held at the end of August in the Lounge.

Thanks and Blessings

A great big thank you to our Church School Staff of 2010 - 2011! You are a terrific, talented group. To our church school members - thank you for coming to Church School so faithfully this year. We pray you have a safe, wonderful summer.

CONTINUING CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

Education for (Lay) Ministry

Fall Term begins September 12

When I mention EfM, some people immediately think it's not for them because they don't seek ordination. In reality, the name "Education for Ministry" can be misleading, because the purpose of EfM is to help lay people discover and develop the ministries to which all Christians are called. Often this training helps us continue work we are already doing, but seeing it more intentionally as a ministry. Our Prayer Book, in asking who are the ministers of the church, cites lay persons first, then bishops, priests, and deacons.

The ministry of lay persons is to represent Christ and his Church; to bear witness to him wherever they may be; and, according to the gifts given them, to carry on Christ's work of reconciliation in the world; and to take their place in the life, worship, and governance of the church (BCP p 855)

As the result of our Baptismal Covenant, all the people of God are ministers.

Education for Ministry (EfM) was developed by the School of Theology at the University of the South at Sewanee over 30 years ago, and has enrolled thousands of students worldwide. In the four-year program, a group of from 6 to 12 students study the Bible and supplied texts. In addition, through reflecting on a scripture passage, a text, a film, a personal experience, or an artifact, students determine how the message speaks to their hearts and lives. Through weekly discussion of meaningful issues, students bond with one another and form a closely knit community.

Although students are asked to commit to attend faithfully, read the supplied texts, and contribute in discussion, no exams or term papers are required. Students are also asked to commit to only one year at a time. Participants do not need to be members of St. Andrew's, or even Episcopalian.

The years are:

One: Hebrew Scripture Two: Christian Scripture
Three: Church History to 1800 Four: Theological Choices

Former students say:

"EfM provided me, a lay person, with an opportunity to study scripture, theology, church history, with more depth and in a more structured way than would have been possible short of enrolling in a seminary. Another important benefit was the strong sense of community built among the participants by regular worship and sharing of insights in the process of theological reflection. EfM does require a large commitment of time, money, and effort, but the rewards are well worth it."
- Mark Chaffee

"I was constantly awed and impressed by the depth of the group's seeking and discussion. The time commitment, two to four hours of home study a week, and the seminar meetings were well worth it. The four years flew by. EfM provides a wonderful opportunity to share your faith, your questions, and your insights, as well as to discover your ministry." - Margaret Nieman

EfM is not:

- A lecture series in which information is imparted from the "expert" to the students (even though we have some guest speakers)
- Bible study (even though the Bible is thoroughly read and discussed)
- A graduate school seminar (even though those who apply can receive 18 continuing education units for each year of study)
- A place where there is "one right answer"
- Group therapy (even though support and friendship are evident)
- A venue for political activism (even though we may discuss current issues)
- A substitute for your primary weekly worship experience (even though we include worship)

St. Andrew's EfM group meets in the lounge on Mondays, 6:30 to 9:00 pm starting September 12. Interested? Please contact Barbara Mackey. For more information: www.sewanee.edu/EFM

PARISH LIFE

Parishoner's Viewpoint

The Peace. 10:00 am, Easter Day,

While I was exchanging a sign of peace with those around me, a man commented on the grand music. I shared my view, "That's the way we do it at St. Andrew's, nothing but the best. We do this every Sunday." I invited him to come again. He waved his arm over two pews and explained that he and his colleagues had performed last night at Hill Auditorium, and they were on their way to Carnegie Hall to repeat the same program on Monday.

When I got home, I found the Carnegie Hall website had this to say about our visitors: "A recital with any one of these singers would be memorable; a program with them all together is outstanding. In Schumann's setting of Spanish folk poetry, Sylvia Schwartz, Bernarda Fink, Michael Schade, and Thomas Quasthoff all show off their skills individually before joining up in the final song. At the heart of this program are Brahms's two brilliant sets of vocal quartets with their two-piano accompaniment by pianists Malcolm Martineau and Justus Zeyen."

I telephone my mother every Sunday afternoon. Her first question is, "What happened at church today?" I had a story to share with her and decided to share with you as well. I also shared one of the pearls from the sermon, 'Easter is about the resurrection, not the empty tomb.' Holy Week was a refreshing pilgrimage for me. That's the way we do it at St. Andrew's.

Thanks be to God,
James E. Crooks

Labyrinth Walk

On Saturday, June 18, you are invited to join in a visit/pilgrimage to the Weber Conference Center in Adrian, Michigan, in order to walk the beautiful outdoor labyrinth on the grounds of the Adrian Dominican Motherhouse. Persons need not be members of St. Andrew's to participate. The group will also visit other areas there of aesthetic and historic interest. Considerable walking is involved, some on uneven ground. Car pools are recommended and will leave St. Andrew's at 9:00 am, returning at 3:00 pm. Ann Garvin and Bernadette Pelland will drive. A buffet lunch will be available in the Motherhouse dining room for $8, paid at the time of registration. Registration forms will be on the Information table. Please register at the church office or by mail with cash or check for $8 payable to St. Andrew's, by Wednesday, June 8, using the bottom portion of the registration form from the Information Table.

Call either either Bernadette Pelland (734-769-9413) or Ann Garvin (734-663-4075) for further information. A printed guide as well as a verbal introduction to the labyrinth will be provided.

COME FOR A LABYRINTH WALK

"The Labyrinth turns the simple act of walking into a sacred experience." Gnosis
"The ancient wisdom found in the labyrinth can be used as a meaningful spiritual tool in contemporary times." Arrien

The Labyrinth is an archetype (pattern) found in all religious traditions throughout the world. It has only one path so there are no tricks or dead ends. The path winds throughout and can become a mirror for where we are in our lives. In the Middle Ages walking it substituted for pilgrimages to Jerusalem, The best known labyrinth is in the stone floor of the Cathedral at Chartres in France. There are now over six thousand labyrinths in the United States, in churches, hospitals, and in both inside and outdoor locations.
